Adam Gopnik's recent essay for the New Yorker, "The Anti-Anti Americans" featured Bernard-Henri Lévy. Gopnik is the author of Paris to the Moon.

* "Are we at the hinge of history, or only witnessing a burp in it?"

* Is the sense of emergency justified or exaggerated?"

* Is there a 'liberal' French perspective on the subject that might be worth having here?"

* Is American insularity a natural function of empire or a special plague?"
